Brand New Book  Print on Demand .Excerpt from The Cavalier, Vol. 2 of 3: A Romance The grey woman had her eye upon the troopers, as they mounted the rugged road, which passed over the crown of the moor; they attained the height, and in a few minutes their whole troop disappeared over the hill. She sat down to repose herself upon a stone which had fallen, and which being of great size, supported the remainder of the wall, whence it had detached. Aye, aye, said she, after a while, these reckless lads are the down o' the heather - when wad the Round-heads have offered a body a horn o' liquor? By my blood and bones, ye ma' thirst and thirst to it, before ye get a draught o' aught but the running stream, fra' their puritan consciences. Well, well, I have done my do' to gain the Baron; but were it to do again - Ye'd change your hand; cried a voice above her.
