Excerpt: .ox escapes; and of cparse his end of the yoke falls down to the ground. The boys stopped the steers and got them together again at the side of the road, just as I came up, and they were trying to yoke up again the one that had got away. The smallest boy was holding up the bow in its place, and the other, who Was considerably larger, was trying to put in the pin; but it seems that the small boy did not hold it up quite high enough, for the other called out to him, in a very loud and angry, and very imperious tone, Why don t you hold up that bow, you fool? I looked.out at him as I was passing, and said, Keep good-natured, my boy; the beauty of breaking steers is to keep good-natured. What did he say...
